
Black lines: single DNA molecules from public sequencing runs (on the person's assembly: whole; on the reference: cut at their switch). Shaded bands: where each block of the person's assembly sits on the reference (orange: donor end, blue: recipient end). Grey blocks match a third chromosome end, not shown. All tracks start at the telomere (black).